

PRESS RELEASE

Kenneth Weines is a country artist from Harstad, a small coastal town in northern Norway.

He play and sing country music of the neo-traditional kind and have been playing music since he was a little kid.

He write his own songs and have recorded two albums on Music Row in Nashville, Tennessee with the very best of session musicians that Nashville has to offer.

His debut album from 2005, self-titled "Kenneth Weines" opened many doors for him as an artist. The song "Leave Me Alone" stayed on the NRK radio toplist Norsktoppen for 15 weeks with several weeks at 2nd place as the best position.

In 2000 he hooked up with three students from the local music school and his new band was formed.

Through the years Kenneth and his band have played at many festivals, guested many venues and warmed up for great american artists such as Alan Jackson, Dr.Hook, Steve Earl, Lynn Anderson, Wanda Jackson, Marty Stuart, Billy Yates, Connie Smith, Tanya Tucker and many more...

In 2013, Kenneth went to Nashville again with ten new self-composed songs in his bag and recorded the album entitled "I'll Wait For You". This album was released digitally only and was never officially promoted as Kenneth wanted to realize more of his interests. In 2014, he moved to Motala in Sweden to train as a watchmaker. After a few years in the profession, music began to call once again...

Now Kenneth is back and more than ready to give the people real country music again.
